Only One of Startling Charges Made by Fanny Bender in Divorce Complaint.

FILED AGAINST FRANK BENDER

Plaintiff Declares Her Husband Has Threatened to Kill Her and Publicly Insulted Her.

EXTRA! ARREST BOYS FOR TAKING WHEELS

The Fort Wayne Dispatch and a freight car on the Indiana Union traction line collided near Tipton about three o'clock this afternoon, killing the motorman and five passengers on the Dispatch. About fifteen other passengers were injured, some of them fatally. The Fort Wayne car belongs to the same line on which the terrible disaster happened at Kingsland Wednesday afternoon, when forty people were killed. The line is said to be the best managed one in the State. All those killed were in the smoker.

TAX PAYING TIME IS NEAR AT HAND

Already the Treasurer's Office in the Court House is Taking on Usual Activity.

FOR THIS SEASON OF YEAR

The payment of taxes has begun and the stubs, showing tax receipts given out, are accumulating now in the county treasurer's office with every day and will increase as the first Monday in November, the last for tax paying, approaches.

The plaintiff rehearses in the complaint that she was married to Frank Bender last March 30, and that they lived together until September 22, Thursday last, in a home furnished by herself and her father. She alleges that on or about July 4th, the defendant commenced a system of cruel and inhuman treatment against her. The plaintiff declares that her husband publicly insulted her in a crowd at Greensburg at one time.

Mrs. Bender further avers in the complaint that she was married to Frank Bender last March 30, and that they lived together until September 22, Thursday last, in a home furnished by herself and her father. She alleges that on or about July 4th, the defendant commenced a system of cruel and inhuman treatment against her. The plaintiff declares that her husband publicly insulted her in a crowd at Greensburg at one time.

The plaintiff further declares that from the defendant's threats to kill her and do her bodily harm, she fears that he will, unless restrained by the court, do her bodily harm. She asks for a divorce, her maiden name, Fanny Wolfe Maupin and that her husband be restrained from molesting her. She wishes that the defendant be ordered to pay the court thirty dollars to pay the expenses of the prosecution and all other proper relief. Smith, Camborn & Smith are attorneys for Mrs. Bender.

ASSIGN ANOTHER REASON

Believed Pleasure Trip Caused St. Paul Baker to Leave.

According to the residents of St. Paul, who was in the city Friday, a pleasure trip taken this summer by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Adams proved to be a rather expensive one for them, says the Shelbyville Democrat. As a result of this pleasure trip residents of the town attribute the disappearance of Adams. According to statements made by the St. Paul man today, Mr. Adams was doing an excellent business in his bakery up until the time he went to Niagara Falls. He remained away for two weeks. During his absence, however, his customers went elsewhere for their bread and when he returned they failed to call and see him. This caused him to run away.

TO COMPLETE BIG BARN FOR SALE

MR. BUSINESS MAN PUT HORSE SHOW POSTERS IN YOUR WINDOW.

Structure Being Built by Davis Bros. Will Cover More Ground Than Any Other in City.

IDEAL PLACE FOR THE AUCTION

Stables Will Include a Space Almost as Large as Court House Block.

Every effort is being made to complete the Davis Brothers' mister feed and sale barn on the site of the old one in South Morgan street, which was destroyed by fire last June, in time for the third annual horse show and combination sale which will be held October 20, 21 and 22. It is highly probable that the structure will be finished by that time so that the first annual horse auction in connection with the horse show can be held there. The auction is an innovation this year and is expected to prove a very attractive feature and a fitting close to the show, which it is now believed will surpass all others in every phase. It is the honest belief of local men who are interested in the show and Rush county horses that the sale can be made to assume such proportions in years to come that it will compare favorably or even be better than the famous annual Lackey sale which is held at Cambridge City each spring and which has attracted attention all over this section of the country.

The two boys played with a crowd of other youths in a vacant lot in the northwest part of the city until about seven o'clock last night. When they left, they told their companions that they were going to leave Rushville for good and that they would never see them again. The other boys believed that their playmates intended to carry out their threats and they notified the parents of the two runaway boys. The police were notified at once and were asked to be on the lookout for the two youngsters. It was thought at that time that the boys had left on the northbound Big Four freight. The parents expressed the opinion this morning that the youths would return just as soon as the newness of the adventure wore off.

The police were notified of the theft of the two wheels, but did not connect the runaway boys with the robbery at all and believed that it was other parties who had taken the bicycles. But this morning the police received word that two Rushville youngsters had stopped at the Carr farm between here and Arlington yesterday evening and had stayed there all night. The report was to the effect that the boys were riding wheels and had left early this morning, going west. The city marshal went in a machine from the Reeve Motor company and caught up with the two youths just this side of Morristown. They were brought back to this city and lodged in jail. It was found that the bicycles, which young Carter and Meyers were riding, belonged to the men who lost their wheels last evening.

The barn is one hundred and sixty-five feet long and is one hundred and eight feet wide, covering a total of sixteen thousand, nine hundred and twenty square feet. It is one story high with a spacious mow room, 165 feet long, 24 feet wide and 13½ feet deep. That part of the building which will be known as the sale barn is fifty-four feet wide and thirty-eight feet from stall to stall, which allows two thousand and fifty-two square feet for the crowds, while the sale is taking place. The cab room is fifty by fifty-six feet; the feed room, fifty by fifty-three feet, and the bus room, fifty by fifty-six feet. The Caldwell bus line will have headquarters there and keep all of their horses and vehicles there just as soon as the structure is completed.

It is thought that the building will be completed in ample time for the big combination sale. Stall room will also be had there for horses which will be entered in the horse show. Every detail is being prepared for the show and an effort will be made to make it far better than the two which have preceded it. The Indianapolis News' Newsboys' band will be an attraction one of the days and an attractive program will be prepared for each night. It is now planned to erect bleachers along the street where the show will take place to accommodate the large crowds.

The following committees have been named to have charge of the various departments of the show: Finance, Sherman Oneal, Ben Cox, R. S. Davis, Floyd Hogsett, P. A. Miller, and W. L. King; music, P. A. Miller, and Willard Amos; decoration, Will Bliss, Dora Betker, Ab Denning, and A. L. Riggs; grand stand and seats, W. L. Brown, John Hiner and Robert

PREACHER WILL TALK ABOUT WIFEY

The Rev. R. W. Abberley Will Deliver Second Lecture-Sermon on "The Wedding Ring."

AT THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH

The series of lecture-sermons on "The Wedding Ring" will be continued by the Rev. R. W. Abberley at the Main Street Christian church tomorrow evening, when he will discuss "The Model Wife." Every married man in the city ought to see it that his wife attends to hear herself talked about. As every woman is either married, expects to be, or hopes to be some day, it would be well for her to learn how to be the model wife, when the happy time comes. The lecture is timely and those who heard the lecture last Sunday night on "Love and Courtship" will not need a second invitation. The lectures are creating great interest.

IT'S PREVALENT IN ST. PAUL NOW

That Ever-Present Desire to Mysteriously and Suddenly Disappear Has Hit Another Denizen.

OF SMOKELESS POWDER TOWN

Mace Bush, Proprietor of "Dry" Beer Emporium Departs, But he Can't Shake His Wife.

First it was Dr. Bell, then it was Walt Adams, the baker, and now it is Mace Bush, the dispenser of "dry" beer and other soft and near soft drinks who has given St. Paul the go-by, says the Shelbyville Morning News. Mace quit the place at an early hour Friday morning and probably passed through Shelbyville on the outward bound trip for he was seen by one of his friends to take an early west-bound car. Whither he went no one seems to know and further it seems that no one is going to any great pains to find out his destination.

Dr. Bell and Baker Adams left their wives. Bush tried just as hard to leave his better half but he could not shake her and she was at the car to accompany him on the trip and was allowed to do so. Bush is quoted as saying on Thursday, however, that he intended to leave his wife if he could possibly get away from her.

They have been having all kinds domestic trouble recently and not long ago she declared her husband had pushed her out a window of the upstairs room above Bush's place of business, but that she had been saved from a dangerous fall by a friendly awning. Then there was another quarrel and finally a reconciliation, and on Thursday night it is said that another altercation occurred between the couple. In spite of it all, however, Mrs. Bush clung to her husband and was eager to leave with him when it came time to go.

Monroe Bush, a brother of Mace, had been staying with him for some time and on Friday he closed up his brother's business affairs by selling out his stock of goods to George Hess. Then he also left the town Friday evening, having previously stated that he was going to Denver. It may be that Mace is heading for the same place. At this rate it looks like St. Paul will soon be depopulated unless by some happy discovery the tide of emigration can be checked.

The fever for running away seems to be spreading, for it is now said that Martin Pike, a resident of Sugar Creek township, Shelby county, formerly of Bengal, has deserted his wife and two sons, and that he has no intention of ever returning to them. His excuse for leaving, according to stories told by his friends is that his wife and children refused to help him in the arduous job of making a living and that he was worn out with the one-sidedness of the contest and unable to stick to the task longer. He charges his wife, it is said, with idleness and gross extravagance.

LARGE AUDIENCE TURNS OUT

Congressman Barnard Makes Fourth Speech of Week in Shelby.

Congressman W. O. Barnard of New Castle held a lively meeting at Flatrock, Shelby county, Thursday night at which time he spoke to a crowd which filled the school house, says the Shelbyville Republican. His remarks seemed to catch the audience during the evening, for there were several encores during his speech of an hour. The Old Plantation Quartet accompanied him on his trip.

PLANTING HAIRY VETCH THIS FALL

It Mixes Well With Either Wheat or Rye and Sometimes With Corn.

STATION'S THOROUGH TEST

Give History of New Product Which Has Been Attracting Indiana Farmers!

Many inquiries concerning hairy or sand vetch have come to the station within the last few weeks, says a Lafayette dispatch. The Indiana experiment station has grown vetch for several years in an experimental way. Perhaps a few statements concerning the success of the station with this crop will be of value.

Hairy vetch is an annual legume. The stems are weak and do not support the plant. The leaves are compound, having six to ten leaflets, and are terminated by little tendrils, which attach themselves to whatever they can find for support. The plant will grow as much as eight or ten feet in length where it has escaped from cultivation and has favorable conditions. Ordinarily it does not exceed three or four feet and is usually shorter. The blossoms are a beautiful purple, gathered in clusters which resemble in form the clusters of the black locust. The seeds are black, about the size of small garden peas, and are borne in pods. The plant will have flowers and ripe seeds at the same time.

In the experiments conducted at the station vetch has been sown about September 1 at the rate of one bushel (sixty pounds) of seed per acre. It is usually sown about in order to give it support usually about one and one-quarter bushels of rye per acre. Vetch may also be sown in corn at the last cultivation or later. The plants do not make much growth during the autumn. The winter seems to be hard on them, so that many are start slowly in the spring. However, when it once begins to grow it grows very rapidly and by May 1 will have a growth of eighteen inches or more. Where sown with rye, the mixture does not grow well together, as the rye starts growing earlier and grows more rapidly. In the mixture of rye and vetch the growth of the vetch is rather uncertain. In some spots of the rye the vetch will have a very good growth while in other spots it seems to be at a standstill and doing no good. In different experiments the proportion of vetch to rye of green weight cut about May 1 has been about 25 to 30 per cent. The green weight of rye and vetch per acre will run about six tons, equivalent in dry hay to about two and one-half tons.

Rye and vetch mixture are highly recommended in green feed for dairy cattle. It is believed that wheat and vetch will be a better combination for the State since wheat makes a slower growth than rye and the vetch and wheat come along more nearly together. Vetch is also recommended for turning under as a soil improver. A mixture of rye and vetch might also be used in the same way. Vetch roots are well supplied with nodules, indicating that the plant is an active gatherer of nitrogen from the atmosphere. Where sown alone for turning under, the seedling ought to be heavy so as to make allowances for plants winter killed in order to have a good stand of plants left for growing in the spring. The station prefers to recommend the use of clovers, cowpeas and soy beans as soil improvers rather than vetch. However, if vetch would succeed, it has the advantage over these plants in that it is sown in the autumn and makes growth enough in the spring to be of value when turned under early. Cow peas and soy beans can not be sown until the season is well advanced in the spring. In this way they occupy the entire season. They may, however, be sown after wheat or in corn and make sufficient growth to be of value.

In the sowing of vetch it should be remembered that there is some danger of the plant escaping from cultivation and becoming a weed. Where the vetch comes in wheat the seed is sure to be mixed with the wheat at threshing time and cause a dockage at the elevator. Vetch can not be easily separated from wheat.

Vetch seed is rather costly, seedmen advertise it at about $4.50 per bushel or $7 per hundred pounds. The station does not like to highly recommend vetch for general use by farmers.

A Reliable Medicine — Not a Narcotic.

Mrs. F. Marti, St. Joe Mich., says Foley's Honey and Tar saved her little boy's life. She writes: "Our little boy contracted a severe bronchial trouble and as the doctor's medicine did not cure him, I gave him Foley's Honey and Tar in which I have great faith. It cured the cough as well as the choking and gagging spells and he got well in a short time. Foley's Honey and Tar has many times saved us much trouble and we are never without it in the house." What the Spinning Top Will Do

(The Technical World Magazine for October.)

A toy vender stood on the curb of the shopping district and shouted. In a moment the crowd gathered eagerly and open-eyed about him. He picked up a little cubical pasteboard box and stood it on the point of a pencil—and it stood there. Next he caught it up by a loop of thread and it stood out horizontally without support, ostentatiously defying the law of gravitation. Then he performed his most fetching miracle. He set it on an inclined wire and down it went preserving its balance with great dignity. Then he opened the box and displayed its contents.

"Fifteen cents, ladies and gents. Step up and buy your gyroscope tops—three nickels, fifteen cents." And the crowd bought. For there is something irresistably fascinating about the gyroscope top.

So a Connecticut Yankee of ingenious mind thinks, and he is solving the problem of safe flight in the air. So a little Irishman in England and a learned, practical German savant have thought, too. The result of their work and the work of many others is the coming age, the age of the gyroscope, when by the aid of this marvelous little instrument we shall fly safely in the air, spin over the earth on a single rail—perhaps on a single, big wheel—sail the seas without rolling or pitching, dive down unafraid among the fishes, revolutionize war, annihilate space—in short do a thousand things of which we have only now just begun to dream, all by means of another little toy that has been made to do the world's work.

structured and patented an aeroplane with a gyroscopic attachment to insure perfect, automatic stability. Stanley Y. Beach has just constructed a number of his gyroscopes, and he claims, will keep his aero steady as a bird. The little gyrostat will be the brains of the big mechanical flyer. It is the first of its kind ever built and will probably revolutionize aerial navigation.

There are numerous other practical applications of the gyroscope. Thus Dr. Alexander S. Chesson of Washington University in St. Louis, perhaps the greatest American authority on the mathematics of the gyroscope, has recently applied for a patent for an automobile with two wheels. Some day we shall be whirling through the streets automatically balanced like a bicycle rider. The best part of it will be that there will be no skidding on a two-wheeled auto.

The fear that women will soon be running for office seems to be dispelled by the popularity of the hobble skirt.

The custom men propose to get after the dressmakers for smuggling, but the latter will trim Uncle Sam as neatly as they do their customers.

Many men who are laughing at Bob Chanler would find it a money-making proposition to turn over the purse to the real head of their families.

Now they are talking of a combined Grand Army and Confederate reunion. It is high time to fill up that bloody chasm with ham sandwiches and ginger ale.

W. J. Bryan bolts the Nebraska ticket on account of the liquor issue, while many of his followers have for some time been engaged in turning down whiskey.

Roosevelt's sincerity is doubted by some. For instance he says he would send all kinds of crooks, rich or poor, big or little to jail. The crooks in control of the sugar trust were stealing over $1,000,000 a year during his administration, but it was left for President Taft to actually send them to jail.

Politicians are wasting a deal of hypocritical sentiment on the farmer and the "poor consumer." Both are amply able to take care of themselves. The farmer has no kick coming on the price of cattle, hogs, sheep, wheat, corn or hay. He will buy an automobile and deposit the balance of his money in bank or spend it just as he likes. And the "poor consumer" will buy and eat all he wants, no matter what the cost. Neither class thanks the demagogue for maudlin sympathy.—New Castle Courier.

A great many politicians including some editors are making a loud noise in favor of insurgency and use the word "progressive" quite frequently. They are mostly those who expect by this "new deal" to get up to the pie counter. The great mass of the voters are simply Republicans—staunch and consistent Republicans—who will vote the ticket notwithstanding the abuse and the opprobrious appellation of "standpatter" which is heaped upon them. The insurgent must have his way or he will not play. It is otherwise with the "standpatter." He is still a good Republican and will vote the ticket even if it is tinged with insurgency. The case of Senator Hemenway is an illustration. We quote the Madison Courier, which says: "Former Senator Hemenway sustained his reputation as an astute politician and broadminded statesman in the proceedings of the First district congressional convention. If the Republican leaders will absorb the Hemenway spirit harmony and victory will be ours in November."

To which the Washington Herald adds: "Senator Hemenway is a Republican. No one who knows him and knows what a broad and conservative man he is ever gave a single thought to the ridiculous stories put out by the Democrats that he would in any manner lend encouragement to the Democratic hope that the Republican party of Indiana might split up on account of trifling differences of opinion as to the relative merits of the recently passed tariff bill, which bill is not perfect, of course, as no tariff bill has been perfect in all its details."

The same may be said of the Hon. James E. Watson, who, it appears, is considered next to Uncle Joe himself, to be the arch standpatter.

In his address at the Republican convention in Jackson county James E. Watson correctly stated that the Republican party is a party of construction while the Democratic party is a party of opposition. Every great step in political advancement which has been taken since the time of Lincoln has been proposed by Republican leaders. On the other hand, practically all of these important measures have been fought by Democrats and they have used their influence to defeat them. That the Republican party stands for advancement is shown by the present State platform which advocates the most prominent progressive measures which the public is demanding.—Seymour Republican.

Women's Headgear for the Coming Season

From Paris comes the announcement that this year there will be two kinds of hats—the large and the small—and for the present the medium hat will be laid aside. The large hat is extremely large, with a low, rather flat round crown and a wide brim which droops in a natural mushroom effect all the way around. This is most generally becoming. An odd touch is given by the Parisian milliners to this wide brim by pinching it into a point in two or three places just enough to break the monotony of the long line and a piping of velvet is added to the extreme edge to give softness. In hat fabrics there is not such a wide range as the summer gave us, but it is much more distinct. The Rev. R. W. Abberley will talk about women Sunday night. People who contemplate going are requested not to take their coats as the minister will not spend the whole night on the topic even though he might be able to continue until he was overcome by exhaustion.

A local man has made a grave mistake in shaving off his mutton chop whiskers. They will be more valuable than gold.

It is a strange, strange fact that when someone cuts out some item out of the paper, that's the very one you wanted to see most.

They say that there are few motor-men, running traction cars in the fair State of Indiana today, who is not keeping their foot on the soft, soft pedal—in other words, the brake.

It seems like it's sorta natural for everyone to take a rap at a rich tight-wad once in a while.

Drink is the instrument of a man's downfall but not the cause. That is by reason of his own wrong choice.

The new sidewalk decorative lights proposition is shining even more brightly today.

but rendering it wonderfully pliable, so that it can be rolled back from the face in all sorts of fetching curves. The trimming is usually heavy chiffon or mousseline in a darker shade chiffon or museline in a darker shade than the felt swathed softly about the crown and ending on the left side in a large chou. With the cold weather, turbans of velvet or heavier cloth will come into their own again. These are worn crushed down on the head and are practically untrimmed, the material being rucked on a frame in such a full fashion as to render anything else unnecessary. A large cabochon of jet or barbarene jewels or a military gold cord with tassel ends may be used to add a touch of sparkle to a dull material.

There is a rumor, due probably to the chanticleer influence, of the revival of the feather turban, but as yet few of them are on view in the shops. Blue is the popular color and it is seen in all shades from the deep raven blue to the Alice or Copenhagen. A combination of two colors is the smart thing, and royal blue combined with black is one of the most highly favored. Turbans of satin, the crowns made of stiff folds on a light frame, are very popular with the younger girls. One I have in mind is of bright red satin. This has a three-inch band of Persian reds on a black ground encircling the hat and serving to tone down the gay color.

Summer felt and hemp braids make a splendid combination for the days between seasons, when we bid a reluctant farewell to the straws and lingerie of summer. Wide brimmed hats show this most effectively. Hemp of the same shade as the felt is applied in a wide band on the upper brim, giving it not only a smart touch crown or line of brim, but still the same old sailor. With the departure of the hot summer days went also the extremely wide brim and for walking or riding in early autumn the sailor will be much worn with a medium straight brim. Later on, in felt the brim will be wider, turned up a little all around maybe and dented abruptly on the left front, with the turn-up caught with a round cabochon of satin. There will be a straight band around the crown piped with a contrasting color—red with black, blue with red, and black with green. Traveling hats of the same material as our suits or long coats (tweed or homespun) are considered very smart for traveling or outdoor sports. They are in modified sailor shape, the material being stitched in close rows over an interlining. The brim is rolling and can be twisted to suit any face. For children the tricorn shape in felt or fine beaver is very smart. This is trimmed with pom-poms of ostrich. For the little tots quaint bonnets of the Kate Greenaway order are to be highly recommended.

AMUSEMENTS

The Star Grand presents a Vitagraph comedy tonight entitled "The Wrong Box." Mistakes are common, especially when a young man is in love, like the one in this story. His girl's parents arrange a reception and dance. In accordance with the proper custom he buys some cut flowers for her and orders them sent to his house. Then he goes to a gent's furnishing store and buys himself a suit of pajamas, taking them home with him in a box. He calls a messenger boy and tells him to take the flowers to the young lady's home. The boy picks up the wrong box, containing the pajamas and delivers them to the young lady with the young man's note saying he hopes she will wear them for his sake. When the adored one opens the box and recognizes its contents you can readily see the young man's finish. She goes to the reception without him, accepts the attention of another young man, and treats her lover in such a manner that makes him look and feel like a monkey. Earl Robertson will sing a new song.

The Palace management will offer an exceptionally good film for the Saturday night crowds in the Biograph film, "Little Angels of Luck."

Children are the principals in the plot which has to do with a little story in high finance, where the president of the Independent Sugar company wages a winning war against the great sugar trust.

The little ones play a very important part and are largely responsible for the victory which is won. The picture is characterized by the usual good acting.

A new illustrated song will be on the program.

The Vaudet management will offer a big double program tonight in the films, "Taming a Woman Hater" and "The Cow Boy and the School Marm," which was shown last night.

The new picture for tonight is a Thanouser film made by the same firm which reproduced "Thelma," Tom Taylor, the owner of a beautiful rustic little cottage believes he is a woman hater and lives alone in seclusion. He later sells his home to a neat figure and takes up his residence at the hotel. There he becomes the victim of an innocent game and the unexpected climax of it all makes the picture worth while. A new illustrated song will be sung.

"Seven Days," a screaming farce comedy, will be the attraction at the Auditorium in Connersville this evening. It is the dramatization of Mary Robert Reinhardt's novel, "When a Man Marries."

John Wolters visited friends and relatives in Clarksburg yesterday. Miss Lavina Harvest, his sister, returned to this city with him.

BODIES WASHED
AWAY IN WRECK

Fast Train On Rock Island
Takes Awful Plunge.

SIXTEEN PERSONS WERE KILLED

Small Stream Near Clayton, Kan., Suddenly Became a Raging Torrent, Washing Out the Bridge, Through Which Gap a Train Plunged, Cars Being Piled in Awful Confusion Thirty Feet Below.

Clayton, Kan., Sept. 24.—Sixteen known to be dead, probably others killed and their bodies washed away and eleven injured, is the record of a railroad wreck which occurred on the Rock Island road two miles east of this place, when a fast train on the Rock Island ran through an open bridge into twenty feet of raging water.

The stream is at ordinary times simply a dry arroyo with no water, with its bed thirty feet below the level of the railroad bridge. A tremendous rain fell and the ordinarily dry bed was soon filled to the brim with a wild torrent. The bridge itself was quickly broken up and carried away. While the storm raged a Rock Island passenger train traveling forty miles an hour rushed headlong into the gap and the forward end of the train took the plunge into the ravine. The locomotive, tender and baggage car disappeared entirely under the water and the engineer, fireman, baggageman and conductor were all instantly killed. The smoker, which stopped on the brink of the stream, was telescoped by the chair car and many of the passengers killed outright. Others were thrown into the stream and were drowned.

With the exception of the last Pullman the entire train left the track and the cars and coaches were piled in one big heap or rolled into the ditch alongside the rails. None of the dead or injured are from east of the Mississippi, all passengers and trainmen having been from the west.

CONTRADICTIONS

There Are Two Stories Regarding the Blame For the Kingsland Wreck.

Fort Wayne, Ind., Sept. 24.—Recovery seems assured for only two of the six injured in the Kingsland wreck lying in local hospitals. Of the remaining four, physicians say they would not be surprised if they died at any time. This would raise the death total to forty-four.

The case of B. T. Corkwell, the motorman of the southbound car, on whom the traction officials are shifting the blame, is baffling. He is suffering from a concussion of the brain that the doctors cannot understand.

"Corkwell's orders were to lay over five minutes at Yoder. He directly disobeyed this order and attempted to make the next siding," said Clain Agent Fahsing of the Fort Wayne & Wabash Valley Traction company, in placing the blame on the motorman of the southbound special. Conductor Del Wilson, who had charge of the southbound car, the one which was alleged to be overrunning its orders, stated positively that he had received orders from Dispatcher Freimeler to run from Fort Wayne to stop No. 107—a short distance south of Kingsland and about a mile from the scene of the disaster. This, Freimeler says, is untrue. The orders cannot be found.

One report is that the wreck was caused, not by the crew of the southbound special running on the time of the northbound car, but by the dispatcher, John Freimeler, overlapping his orders. It is alleged that he ordered the northbound train to stop at Stop 106, and the southbound at Switch 107. However, the records in the dispatcher's office show differently, but Wilson says he knows this to be true, but that he and his motorman, Corkwell, had lost their orders.

Daring Aviator Injured.

Milan, Italy, Sept. 24.—George Chavez, the Peruvian aviator, flew from Brig, Switzerland, over the Simplon pass, and arrived at Domodossola, on the Italian side of the Alps. In alighting Chavez fell beneath his machine and both legs were broken. To make the flight it was necessary for the daring aviator to ascend to a height of 7,000 feet.

THE LEMON INDUSTRY

It Is Being Worked Overtime In Ranks of Indiana Democracy.

Special Correspondence.

Indianapolis Sept. 24.—St. Joseph county and Senator Shively have no monopoly of the lemon industry in Democratic politics. It is not alone in northern Indiana that Democrats are handing out sassy slaps to each other. John W. Kern, much as he has been abominated by his fellow Democrats, is not always the target for flying half-bricks and other bric-a-brac. Shively is called on to dodge himself, once in a while. For instance, down in Parke county the Democrats passed resolutions whooping things up for Moss, Marshall, Kern and local candidates, but not a word, good or bad, was offered for Senator Shively, the only Democratic senator since Turpie. John E. Lamb is said to have looked after the Parke county resolutions which omitted Shively. It is to be noted herewith that the Lamb Democrats did not fear to resolve. Not for a minute. They spoke right out. They did not take anything to avoid saying that which was not in their hearts. They simply spoke out. And what they did not say of Shively is fully as emphatic as what they did say of Kern. So there it is again, the old reliable brand of Democratic harmony, with the Kilkenny cat motif.

Now it is not difficult to understand why the Shively crowd in the St. Joseph county Democratic county convention refused to vote for resolutions endorsing and instructing for Kern. The bribery charges made by Kern, the disappointed, against Shively, the successful candidate for United States senator, rankle in the breast of Shively, and no amount of salve or coaxing on Kern's part will change the situation. In the Parke county matter, where John E. Lamb controls, it is also easy to explain why Senator Shively lacked endorsement and encomium. Lamb is not the trimmer Kern is. Lamb is a fighter. Because he fought Taggart and the Shively crowd last spring, Taggart delegates blessed Lamb for nearly five minutes in the Democratic state convention and refused to let him have his say. Lamb fought with all his energy and force against the secret ballot scheme or trick which enabled the Shively men to rob John W. Kern of the toga in 1909. Lamb was a senatorial aspirant. He demanded an open ballot and an honest count. He was against "jackpots" and so was against Shively and the "jackpotters." He has not changed. He refuses to join Kern in any effort to placate or appease Shively.

At the demand of John W. Kern, the Democratic publicity experts have gone to great pains to "explain away" the St. Joseph county convention. "No slap at John W. Kern," they say in a labored "explanation." They go on to say that when the Shively people turned down the Kern resolutions they also turned down a Shively and Barnhart endorsement, and that the "slap" was at all if it was meant for one. They refer to "other matters" in the same resolutions, but they do not come out honestly and tell us that the "other matters" included a clause instructing St. Joseph county legislative nominees to vote for Kern for United States senator. The publicity bureau does not "explain" that this instruction clause was the one thing which brought about the repudiation of the whole set of resolutions. But that is the fact. Then, too, the resolutions carried a denunciation of the Payne tariff law. This was turned down along with the rest. Is it possible the Democrats are afraid to attack the protective principle? Could they not have passed a tariff resolution without impinging on the danger zone of the Kern problem?

Going back to the Fifth district, but sticking to the matter of problems, the still, small voice of Judge Charles Batt, of Terre Haute, is heard to complain, saying: "I regard it as a very unwise move to bring W. J. Bryan into Indiana to make speeches. I do not believe, in view of the fact that Mr. Bryan has just bolted a part of the Nebraska state Democratic ticket, that he will be effective as a speaker in the cause of the Indiana Democratic party. For myself I have no use for a bolter." And there you are, again, just one trouble after another. But so far as is known, Bryan is coming. It was funny the Bryan itinerary for Indiana should be published the same day of his bolt in Nebraska. But then one can't tell what's going to happen to Democrats this fall.

All the October magazines are featuring the Indiana campaign, and the national view of the fight for the re-election of Senator Beveridge. Scarcely any magazine of prominence is lacking its character sketch of the Indiana senator, and its boost for his cause. The American, Pearson's Review of Reviews, Collier's, the Saturday Evening Post, all take a turn in urging that Senator Beveridge be sent back to the United States senate.

ASSASSIN HAD PLANNED WELL

No Clue to Murderer of Banker

Norman Black.

MUNCIE POLICE MYSTIFIED

The Assassination on Highway Thursday Night of Wealthy Muncie Banker Has Created Intense Excitement in That Community and the Mystery of the Affair Has Baffled All Attempts at Solution.

Muncie, Ind., Sept. 24.—There is intense excitement here over the assassination Thursday night of Banker Norman Black, and the police are still without a definite clue on which to work.

Mr. Black got his horse and buggy at a livery stable, and an hour later the horse returned with Black sitting upright in the buggy, covered with the lap robe and the lines wrapped around the whips. Black was unconscious and blood was oozing out of an ugly bullet wound in his head. He died two hours later at the hospital. Examination showed that the assassin had carefully propped the dying man up in the buggy and probably turned the horse's head toward the livery barn where it was kept.

Black could not have driven more than two miles before he received his death wound, for the horse returned to the stable in a walk, and persons who saw it at different places say it was walking leisurely and they supposed the occupant was simply driving slowly. The autopsy reveals that a single bullet had taken effect, that having penetrated the brain, and the assassin evidently carried out with precision his attempt at concealment of the crime, as was shown by the care with which he placed the dying man in a position resembling as nearly as possible that of a live man driving, even to the tucking of the robe about him. Black's light gray felt hat, with a bullet hole through it, was found on the road beside him. That the murdered man had no intimation of danger is indicated by the fact that a little while before leaving on his fatal mission, Black told a close friend that he would attend the annual celebration of the founding of the local Elks lodge that night.

A slight clue was furnished by a Big Four railroad flagman, who said that about 7:30 that night he heard three shots fired in quick succession at a point about two squares from the crossing where he is stationed. A few seconds later he heard two more reports from the same spot.

FROM HIS EXPERIENCE

The President Does Not Encourage Boys to Aspire to Presidency.

Cincinnati, Sept. 24.—President Taft visited the city house of refuge for incorrigible boys here. The boys passed in review before him, sang patriotic songs, and some of them shook hands with him. Mr. Taft stopped one lad and asked him what he wanted to do in life.

"I want to be president of the United States," replied the little fellow. Seriously. The president took the boy's remark in the same serious spirit that it was uttered, and he was thinking of it when, in addressing the boys a little later, he said:

"There are places that give more happiness to men than president of the United States. It is enough for you to grow up to be good men and women, to be always honest, kindly and to do right. The satisfaction that you can get from that life is much greater than what you would get by being president." The boys cheered the president heartily at the conclusion of his speech. The president left here at 3 o'clock this afternoon for Washington. He will arrive at the White House about 8:30 Sunday morning.
